

BeNA Labor Economics Workshop November 27, 2020, Berlin

Berlin Network of Labor Market Research (BeNA)

CALL FOR PAPERS

Deadline for submissions: October 25, 2020

The one-day workshop provides young labor economists the chance to present and discuss their recent research. It provides a forum to meet and exchange with fellow doctoral students, post-docs and professors from the field of labor economics. The workshop is targeted at PhD students and will also feature invited talks from Kamila Cygan-Rehm (University of Erlangen-Nürnberg) & Philipp Lergetporer (ifo Institute) to facilitate exchange between junior and senior academics.

We are looking forward to submissions from PhD students working on topics in labor economics from a theoretical, empirical or experimental perspective. Equally, we encourage the submission of work in early stages. All projects presented at the BeNA workshop will be considered for the BeNA Innovative Research Award in the amount of €200.

Due to the current situation, the workshop will be held online on November 27, 2020. However, you will also have the opportunity to ask more questions and share your ideas more directly with our excellent guest speakers in a small segment of office hours that they very kindly agreed to offer (upon request via email: workshop@labor-research.net).

If you want to present your work, please submit an abstract or a draft of your paper by October 25, 2020, to workshop@labor-research.net. The decision on your submission will be communicated by October 28, 2020.

You are also very welcome to attend the workshop without presenting your work. Please register for the workshop via email: workshop@labor-research.net.
